Arrest of Boyle O'Reilly-General McDowell at St. Albans.

Sr. ALBANS, May 30, 1870. Nearly every vestige of the Fenian war has disappeared, and the pleasant little village of St. Albans is again tranquil and inviting. Already, in fact, the infux has commenced and a rare season for summer visitors is anticipated. The United States troops still linger, but the danger of further viola-tion of the neutrality laws having passed they will when it was discovered that there was nothing at all the matter with their commander they left in disgust.

The journals are considerably exercised over the invasion and present various views of the entire affair. An opinion is entertained that Fenian aggression is solely the result of Irish contempt for Gladstone and his pelicy, and a strong complaint is made against British rule and interference, and it is made against British rule and interference, and it is contended that England left Canada entirely unprotected after suggesting it not provoking attack. This looks strongly slike annexation, and not a few are found to express themselves favorably on that point. On the other hand a feeling seems to prevail in some quarters that the United States authorities have passively, if not actively, approved and encouraged the invasion, inasmuch as they were aware of practical means to give the crusade an effective character and course, and the proclamation oaly came at the list hour, when an overt act was inevitable. The majority of people, however, feel satisfied that the United States government acted fairly and with promptness, and used every possible means to prevent and put an end to the trouble. There is no doubt watever that had it not been for the appearance of United States troops upon the border the Fenians would not have desisted for months to come. I learn that a very large quantity of ammunition, upon which the Fenians depended for another attack, has been setzed and guarded by the United States authorities at Maione, All the newspapers here and eisewhere throughout the Dominion contain an account of the engagements copied from the Herallo, which contained the earliest and most various despatches of the encounters on the border. The excitement which prevails here will probably last until the volunteers return from the front. return to the Boston forts to-morrow or next day.

General J. Boyle O'Reilly, who succeeded O'Neill in the command of, the defeated warners at Cook's Corner, was taken into custody by United States Marshal Foster this alternoon, and he is now condited in the jail in this town. He has been lounging around the line since the flight and was evidently seesing arrest for the sake of notoriety, but he will find that the government is in earnest in his case as well as in O'Neill's, and a long season of imprisonment is undoubtedly before him.

General McDowell arrived here from Malone this evening and established his headquarters at the Weldon House. General ingails also returned with him.

Many of the Ferdans believe that O'Neill intended to be arrested by the United States Marshal, and treaten his life if any opportunity presents itself then he is released. They still claim that he has a trge amount of money, collected from the hard carnags of Irish laborers.

A Tale of War-Statement of Two Fenian Officers-Another Account of the Pigeon Hill Skirmish-O'Neill to be Shot at Sight. WHITE RIVER JUNCTION, VI., May 30, 1870.

Colonel Sullivan and Captain Burke, of Boston, arrived here this afternoon bound homeward with a party of Fenians. From them I get this statemen of the Fenjan invasion. Captain Burke commanded the advance company at Pigeon Hill, consist ing of tarry-nine men. Both of his lieutenants skirked duty and fied the field. On Wednesday at a quarter to ten a guard was ed over the lines to prevent citizens and carriages from passing to Canada. Marshal Foster appeared and endeavored to cross, but he was refused rmission. He then met General O'Neill and gave the Fenian general six hours to cross the border and get into Canada. Then O'Neill took the line of get into Canada. Then O'Neill took the line of march with knapsacks, not letting the men knew where they were going. They soon found it necessary to throw away their knapsacks. Within forty rods of the line and five rods from the bridge the firing of the Canadians began. No order was given at this point, nor was any given by O'Neill, save the speech he made to the troops. When the builets were flying thickest Colonel Sullivan was ordered to the rear for the reserves. In about ten minutes he was followed by General O'Neill, who was then arrested by Marshal Foster. Boyle O'Neilly then assumed command, saving been left in charge by General O'Neill, O'Reilly left to find O'Neill, and then Major Murphy took command. Upon hearing of the arrest he ordered a retreat. Then the Boston company of Eurke advanced in the midst of a scathing fire to recover the killed and wounded. He returned with two men, leaving one behind. The entire body of troops now marched to the rear. An accidental discharge of a musket created a panic, the men believing they were pursued by Canadians. They all field indiscriminately and halted only at the camp. Then a war council was held by the officers, which adjourned to meet at six in the evening. It never met again. General Donnelly was brought to the Prankin House by two Causadian officias, who, in performing this act of magnanimity, requested that their names should not be published. General O'Neill is charged by these officers with either gross ignorance or comming treachery. They assert that he gets $3,000 a year, and that he works for money, not principle; that his movement at Frankin was an organized blunder, and that his subsequent carreer was ignorannious and cowardly. They say they will shoot him on sight. march with knapsacks, not letting the men knew

FENIAN NEWS FROM CANADA.

Continued Excitement in Montreal-Rumor Affont-Feeling of the Canadians-Senti-Towards Great Britain and the United States.

MONTREAL, May 30, 1870. The excitement here over the warlike ebuilition on the part of the Fenians still continues, although matters are comparatively quiet on the border. The Canadians are much rejoiced over their recenvictories, and men who participated in the engage ments are regarded as heroes. It may as well mentioned that the people here did not look upon the affair as a joke by any means, but were deeply concerned as to the result of the invasion. I have learned from the most authentic sources that there is a very large body of Fenians among the inhabitants of this city; that during the preliminary ar rangements they were undecided as to what course they should pursue, and that they earnestly sympathized with the movement I have every reason to believe, and were only deterred from taking action in anticipation of defeat, and that in case they had taken part in the movement they would, of course, have been driven from their homes and deprived of their property. Moreover, statements are going the rounds that the authorities hesitated to despatch the regular soldiers of the British Army to the front, learing lest many of them, being Fenians, would have been dilatory in liting upon their brotherhood, and might, perhaps, have joined their ranks upon the field. What truth there may be in such an assertion it is difficult to say. At all events the volunteers were sent to the border and did their work satisfactorily up to the present. It is their boast that not one of their number was killed or wounded. Fenians, however, who fought at both Cook's Corner and Trout River solemnly aver that at each place several of the Canadians fell, but whether they were shot dead or merely disabled they don't amira.

It cannot be demied that the Canadian volunteers presented a fine appearance, and were unquestionably wall drilled prior to their advance to the border. Had there been what could be termed a regular battle the Fenians must have been terribly hacked, owing to the paucity of their numbers as well as the ignorance, stapidity and insecusable thoughtlessness of their leaders, not one of whom was fit to lead a donkey. It is admitted even there that the invasion might have been considerably prolonged had there been a competent military man at the head of the Fenians, who now denounce with extreme bitterness the delusion immer and ignominy to which they were cruelly subjected.

The Canadian volunteers still maintain a sharp lookout, for the widest rumors are still affolia. Among the many is one to the effect that a raid is intended on Barritz Island, which is distant about a mile from Cornwall. The Forty-first battallon from Hrockville and others have been quartered there since last week, when the garrison numbered over thized with the movement I have every reason to believe, and were only deterred from taking action sentiment that "the mite was to enable the prave Irishmen at the front to return to their homes, in order that they might get ready to strike again for freedom." The sentiment was applicated. Mr. Robinson, continuing his remarks, said it was a lamentable fact that not one member of Congress had made a motion to mitigate the outrage committed by the United States authorities in the seizure of arms betonging to Fenians. The government allowed arms to be purchased in New York and forwurded to St. Domingo, to be used there against the people, while, on the other hand, the government made seizure of Fenian arms and ammunition. He said that while millions of dollars were being expended in jobs by men in Congress under various pretexts, such as the annexation of St. Domingo, which territory was not at all desirable of acquistion to the United States, injustice was done to the Irish people here. It was not at all desirable that St. Domingo should be annexed; but Irishand should be free, He favored the annexation of Irishand to the United States, and hoped to see Senators and Representatives in Congress from the provinces of the "Green Isle," and the day would come, even old as he was, when he would see this accomplished. Mr. Robinson denounced in the biterest language possible the sycophancy of those men who made genuflexions in the gutter before the booby-faced Prince, the scion of an adulterous, drunken and imbecile family. He was sorry that ladles were present at the reception of the Prince in Brooklyn, as the Prince was not it to keep company with ladies. pany with ladies.

A VOICE—Yes, he is, with Lady Mordaunt! (Loud laughter.)

Leaving the Prince Mr. ROBINSON animadverted on the charges repeatedly made that the servant girls were defrauded by this Fenian movement, to which they had contributed. It might be that part of the money collected from them had been misappropriated; but there never was a great undertaking attempted that some dishonest men did not take advantage of it. Be this as it might, there was not one of these servant girls who did not contribute her money with a blessing and a smite of gratification far greater than was ever experienced by those who had basked in the smiles of the booby soo men. Several companies of volunteers have been stationed at Ottawa and aff along the border. The greatest vigilance is being kept up.

Pond Island, it was generally asserted, would be taken, but so far as can be learned there appears but little likelihood of such as event arising.

The Fenians are completely disguisted, and numbers of them are quitting the lines, bound homeward. Never were men so completely betrayed into the commission of such a daring, idiotic proceeding, and though perfectly willing to have risked their necks they were entirely unacquainted with the surrounding circumstances of the affair. White at Frankin yesterday I was assured that General Donnelly, the man supposed to have been wounded at Cook's Corner, never received a bullet, but that while scaling a wall near the barn from which he issued was scoideatally scratched in the back, and that although he has since been confined at the Frankin House he was up and walking yesterday. He had been faithfully attended by a Fenian captain and lieutenant, and it is alleged that when it was discovered that there was nothing at all the master with their commander they left in disgust.

The portraits are considerably exercised over the

At the "headquarters," in West Fourth street, and Hibernia Hall, in Prince street, a large number of "misguided wails" were congregated yesterday, and whiled away time by begging for subscriptions, reading some of their "own" telegrams from the Canadian frontier, and enlisting for the fun of the thing. No bounties were offered, not because they were not needed, but mainly because they hadn't got the "stuff" to make "bounties." According to one of their official despatches Colonel O'Leary had gobbled up sixty prisoners by a raid on the "Kanucks," and the deuce generally is to be played at Detroit, Buffalo and other points. A MISPLACED SWITCH

Accident on the Newark and New York Rail-

In consequence of a misplaced switch at the West Bergen depot of the Newark and New York Railroad at half-past seven o'clock yesterday morning an accident occurred, which, fortunately, was attended with no serious results to any person. The locomotive ran of the track, tumbled over and was embedded in the bank; but the passenger cars were not thrown off. Three passengers were slightly bruissed by the shock. The conductor was thrown over the back of a seat and slightly injured. The engineer and fireman saved themselves by jumping off. The passengers were taken to New York by an outward bound train, which turned back from the scene of the wreek. A number of the "great defeated" came into town by the Hudson River Railroad direct from the scene of the Quixotic frays of last week. Some of them brought their "bruised and battered 'arams'" with them, to be used hereafter as mantelpiece ornaments, but all of the veterans were sullen and indisposed to "say much." Those who have any brains own up that "the dog is dead."

A report was in circulation last night to the effect that the Orangemen in this city, who have been holding nightly meetings for some time past, have perfected a thorough organization with a view of repairing immediately to the front in opposition to the Fenians. This rumor is based upon a private circular which was issued yesterday, and distributed to members last evening, enjoining them to be ready at a moment's notice. It is believed the whole body will be in readiness to leave to-day, if necessary. William Edge, one of the parties arrested in April at Charles Island for engaging in a prize fight, has had his trial upon that charge before the Superior Court at New Haven, Conn.. and been found guilty. Sentence has been suspended, in order to give counsel time to file a motion for new trial. Edge had just arrived in New York from England, when he was induced to go to the Charles Island set-to, and after he got there to have a scrub fight. Four of the parties arrested on the island, who were commutted to just for want of ball, have within a few days been released by the payment of costs.

IMPORTANT ARRESTS.

Several days ago John Kandle and George Marshall were arrested by one of Colonel Whitely's detectives, charged with travelling about the country personating government detectives and disposing of United States bonds under that guise. On their persons were found $16,000 in five-twenty United States bonds and $12,150 in miscellaneous bonds and stocks, which are all supposed to have been stolen. The prisoners are confined at the Ludiow street juil to await examination.

ATTEMPTED OUTRAGE.

Last evening Dennis Collins, residing at No. 72 Oliver street, induced Florence Smith, a servant girl living at No. 20 Anson place, Brooklyn, to ac-company him to a house of ill repute at the corner of Catharine and Cherry streets, and there attempted to violate her person. The girl screamed for help, which attracted the attention of the police, who entered the house and arrested Dennis, who was locked up at the Oak street police station.

A CHAPTER OF DISTEBSSING ACCIDENTS.—On last Saturday the wife and children of Jerry Selby went to visit the family of Patrick McNabb, living some seven miles east of this place. The children of the two families, while playing some distance from the house, began making quite a noise and chasing each other, whereupon a dog belonging to Mr. McNabb, thinking the children were in a fight, began to blte the children of Mrs. Selby. The cries of the children attracted their mothers' attention, who ran to their rescue, whereupon the dog attacked Mrs. Selby, biting and tearing her very severely, Mrs. McNabb in the meantime doing all in her power to get the dog off. A young man by the name of Edwards, working for Mr. McNabb, ran to a neighbor's house to get a gun to shoot the dog after he had rescued the women and children, and while returning with the gun, to ascertain fully that it was loaded, but his foot slipped off the hammer, causing a discharge of the gun, the ball passing out through the top of his head, killing him instantly. Dr. Byers was called to attend the sufferers. He reports the woman and two children torn by the dog as in a very critical condition.—Petersburg (Pike county, Ind.) Press, May 25.

The Hartmont loan question is also up again. The contract lapsed and fell dead last December by the failure of the proposed lenders to produce the promised sum within the specified time. But there is a scheme on foot to get in some claim for damages as a lien on the annexation money. Bacz, however, is safe to predict that Hartmont will not win this time. There is a kind of triangular difficulty starting up between hayti, St. Domingo and the United States about the settlement of the Dominican frontier. There was a plan for colonizing that section of the Dominican retritory with a thousand picked settlers from the United States, but Mr. Perry was in trouble about that too, and received some sharp rebuffs from the Dominican Secretary of State before he would give up his claim to know what the government was doing. It has no nostrils, neither has it any upper law, the under law being quite perfect. The head, neck and fore legs have been stuffed by G. W. Lane, and it can be seen at the stable of the Centre House.

QUEER ACCIDENT IN DUDLEY, Mass.—As Deacon Daniel Dwight, of Dudley, was doing his chores last Friday evening, two lengths of his stable gave way, precipitating him into the cellar and hanging six cows up in the stanchions. Although seriously injured he managed to get up into the barn. His hired man went to work cutting down the cows and had them nearly all released when assistance came from the neighbors, who heard the crash and came to see what was the matter. Two of the cows died, but the rest will probably entirely recover from their semi-hanging. Mr. Dwight is still in a critical condition; but it is hoped he will soon again be able to attend to his business.
